Art Unit 122

The claims are 1-9.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103 which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Subject matter developed by another person, which qualifies as prior art only under subsection (f) and (g) of section 102 of this title, shall not preclude patentability under this section where the subject matter and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103 as being unpatentable over Takaya 4,559,334.

Different forms of the same compound are presumptively non-patentable. See ex parte ^{Butler} ~~Reese~~ 139USPQ525 and the cases cited therein. The cephalosporin compounds are known to be more useful in the crystalline form, see Merck index page 268 (copy enclosed). Thus, preparing the crystalline form of a ^{known} human compound follows the teachings of the art, which is evidence of obviousness, not unobviousness. See in al 128 USPQ 116.
